

Meta

- Country: Botswana

Data Preserving List

- Data Preserving List: A, B, C
- Data Preserving Group Number: 3

Diversity Preserving List

- Diversity Preserving Group Names: A, B, C, D
- Diversity Preserving Group Number: 4
- Survey Dropped: 1
- Diversity Preserving Rationale: something blablabla

Group Level Meta-Data

- Original Group Name: yeyi
- Original Master ID Number: 6235
- Original Country Code Number: 571
- Cross Walk Number: 6236
- Subset: 1

Matched Groups

- Matched Group Name: moyei
- Matching Rationale: Same group with different name

Source Material

The probability of protest will increase if political and economic discrimination remain. Though levels of repression fell in 2003 in the aftermath of the civil war, it is possible that the authoritarian regime will revert to its earlier ways. Elections in 2008, the first since 2002, were described as chaotic. The ruling MPLA is currently the only group in the country capable of organizing and winning an electoral contest, which they did with nearly 82 percent of the vote. Continued underrepresentation of the Bakongo, whose party is UNITA, may increase tensions given UNITA's recent history of rebellion prior to 2002. An unstable democratization process might create conditions ripe for protest. Most importantly, if the chronic poverty in the resource-rich country is not addressed, the probability of renewed conflict will rise. - Text: For full access to the Illinois

Wiki, campus users should authenticate by clicking the Log In link in the upper right. From there, feel free to jump in and start browsing pages, or visit our help space for detailed instructions.

- Citation: abc - Document URL: www.google.com - Download Date: 01/01/2000 - Page Number: 123

Source Material

- Text: Another one for full access to the Illinois Wiki, campus users should authenticate by clicking the Log In link in the upper right. From there, feel free to jump in and start browsing pages, or visit our help space for detailed instructions.
- Citation: abcdef
- Document URL: www.bing.com
- Download Date: 02/02/2000
- Page Number: 1234